Planet Panels Develops Environmentally Friendly Home in Record Time

Calgary based environmental manufacturer erects a new infill duplex in only 3 days

Calgary, Alberta (November 3rd, 2010) - In an effort to demonstrate their efficiency, Planet Panels has completed the development of a duplex in Calgary, in three days. The infill duplex was erected using Planet Panel's fully fabricated panel systems. "We wanted to demonstrate how quickly and easily our homes are constructed, without sacrificing quality," stated Planet Panels President, Jim Klus "our panel systems are created for quick yet extremely precise development."

Both sides of the duplex, measuring in at 1,725 square foot each, were created in less than three days. "We take pride in providing "green" and energy efficient home building alternatives for homeowners looking to minimize their impact on the environment without compromising style and comfort." commented Shawn Miller, Production Supervisor at Planet Panels.

"The project reflects our focus as an eco-friendly company. We hope that this project demonstrates to Calgarians that the option to develop an environmentally friendly home is available within their city" concluded Klus.

Planet Panels fully fabricated panel system consists of custom built panels that are stencilled, labelled and delivered logically stacked for rapid assembly. Planet Panels homes boast "no draft" wall systems, reduced greenhouse gas emissions, precision building, reduced heat loss, and improved energy efficiency.
